

The bombardment of La Moneda Palace - Salvador Allende
{youtube}aeO_IsYldU4{/youtube}
www.youtube.com/watch?v=aeO_IsYldU4

Remorseless Hostility

The colonising Nations' hostility against the colonised Nations' urge for innocence; kindness; decency; and freedom, is remorseless because hunting down indigenous populations remains a core element of the colonisers' sense of both, collective as well as, distinct, identity.

Christos Boumpoulis
economist