

For peace, freedom, friendship and frugal prosperity being collective characteristics of a human activity system (group, Nation, etc):

the notions of peace, freedom, friendship and frugal prosperity should be homogeneously distributed experiential knowledge among all the cultures which are included within this human activity system.

the internal channels of information distribution should work dynamically and strictly in real time.

For achieving peace, freedom, friendship and frugal prosperity, it is imperative that we must understand both, what is culturally impossible, as well as, which are the consequences of lacking of trustworthy communication channels.
